Blunder Said to Have Revealed Leeds as the Bank President.

Two of the most interesting stories that Mrs. Anne Urquhart Potter Stillman's lawyers propose telling when the taking of testimony in the Stillman case is resumed will be those relating to the blunder of a servant at Rest Court, Stony Brook, L. I., and of the situation Mr. Stillman found himself in when he sought to maintain three domestic establishments simultaneously.

These stories, reduced to mere skeletons, were told yesterday by an authority on the case. At the same time Cornelius J. Sullivan, one of Mr. Stillman's lawyers, was denying that his client ever had been told by Mr. and Mrs. Pitts Duffield, owners of Rest Court, to vacate that place. Incidentally Mr. Sullivan said that he had not yet served notice of appeal from Justice Morschauer's decision of last week.

The newest chapter in the Rest Court story is that Florence Leeds was given to rather gay parties in the Stony Brook place and that generally Mr. Stillman was present. At first great care was exercised in the choice of guests. They were selected for their discretion and from a class of persons who either did not know Mr. Stillman as Mr. Stillman or who didn't care one way or the other and would not talk. However, Mr. Stillman was always referred to by servants and guests alike as Mr. Leeds, according to the story.

Blunder of a Servant.

But the success of the parties was so complete that less care was observed. There was a new servant and unexpected guests arrived. One servant, suffering a lapse of forgetfulness, chose a moment when the drawing room was filled with guests to address Mr. Leeds as Mr. Stillman. It is reported that one of the guests, being overcome by curiosity, asked the servant about it and the latter is said to have replied that it was a lamentable slip of the tongue inasmuch as he had been instructed to forget the name of James A. Stillman and substitute therefor the name of Franklin H. Leeds.

The charm was broken, for a large part of New York city seemed to know all about it in a day or so. Some of the servants from Rest Court are expected to testify for Mrs. Stillman. Some have made affidavits, others are being sought. The other story told yesterday is that Mr. Stillman's troubles multiplied about 1917, when he is alleged to have maintained his own home with Mrs. Stillman in Pocantico Hills, the apartment at 84 East Eighty-sixth street, where he is alleged to have lived with Florence Leeds as Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Harold Leeds, and another establishment.

It is the young woman who presided over this last establishment who is to be designated as one of the two expected additions to the name of Florence Leeds. Persons who profess to know the details say she is a young woman of undeniable pulchritude. It is said that she immediately preceded Miss Leeds in the banker's esteem. Also it is said that this young woman and Mr. Stillman became estranged when the banker refused to agree with her upon the subject of Miss Leeds.

Search for Former Servant.

Mrs. Stillman's lawyers propose to introduce affidavits from servants and others to support this particular story. The other mysterious woman in the case is described as a "person moving upon the fringe of society." Mrs. Stillman's lawyers are searching the country for a woman servant who is accused of having been placed by the banker in the Pocantico Hills house for the purpose of ascertaining whether Mrs. Stillman and Ferd Beauvais were in communication. It is alleged that she intercepted seven of Beauvais's letters to Mrs. Stillman and that these were the letters rejected by Justice Morschauer as unproved.

Thus far detectives have travelled as far as California in the quest for this woman. They now talk of trying Ireland. One report is that she may be in the employ of the family of a nobleman in England. Only one detective will make the transatlantic trip, however. Another highly desired witness is said to be one Alexander Calender, who was Mrs. Stillman's chauffeur at one time. What Calender is supposed to know about the affair is not explained.

It may be necessary to call Bernard Kelly, now a railroad employee, as a witness. Kelly is said to have been superintendent of the Stillman place in Pocantico Hills until he and Ferd Beauvais disagreed. Beauvais, then instructing the Stillman boys in woodcraft, was charged by Mr. Kelly with usurping some of the latter's authority. Kelly resigned.

BROTHERS SENTENCED FOR ROBBING WOMAN

Alexander and Louis Norestein Pleaded Guilty to Theft.

Two brothers, guilty by their own plea of first degree robbery, were arraigned together yesterday in Bronx County Court and received their sentences from Judge Louis D. Gibbs. At the court house door they paraded, the elder, Alexander Norestein, 25 years old, in a ten o'clock suit at Sing Sing, the other, Louis, 18, to serve an indefinite term of the Elmira Reformatory. They were arrested at Atlantic City two weeks ago by detectives of the Pacific station. On March 2, at 11 o'clock at night, it was charged, the brothers entered the apartment of Mary Glickman, 189 Morris avenue. The Bronx, bound and gagged, Max Glickman and fled with jewelry valued at $500. They pleaded guilty March 30.
